

2016 FREIBURG FORUM ON ENVIRONMENTAL GOVERNANCE

April 23rd, 2016 | Albert-Ludwigs-Universität | Freiburg, Germany

Overview for participants

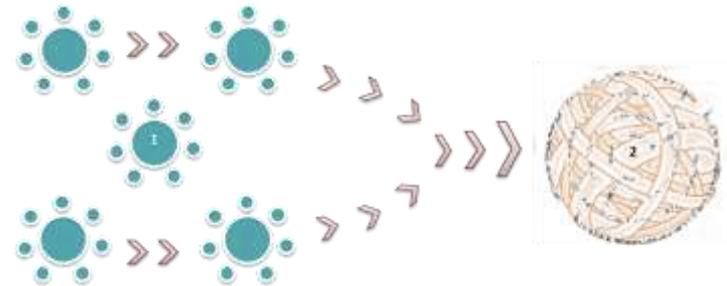

Welcome

Who.Shapes.Complex.Futures?

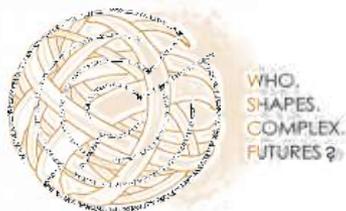

Increasingly, individuals, local communities, businesses, governments and even the UN are setting ambitious sustainability goals - but how can we implement and foster real change for a more sustainable future?

We consider change as a constant transition to more sustainable forms of human life. In this year's Freiburg Forum on Environmental Governance, we invite local and international change makers to share their experience and strategies that were successful in instilling change. The event is held in English and consists of two parts:

Success factors for change
Identify key strategies and conditions to create change

Introspection
Reflect on your personal vision based on your values to be an impactful change maker

What is the Freiburg Forum on Environmental Governance?

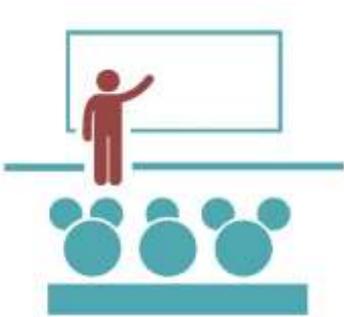

As part of the M.Sc.-programme „Environmental Governance (MEG)“, students are responsible for conceptualising, developing and organising an annual Freiburg Forum on Environmental Governance. Each year, the forum deals with a current international topic of interest. The Forum seeks to plant the seeds of sustainable development and wise leadership in a new generation of global citizens.

Networking, charisma or cooperation - what makes an individual succeed? We invite change makers from government and NGO who have successfully impacted their working environment, to share their strategies for change and key factors that helped them to succeed.

Venue
Platz der Universität 3, 79098 Freiburg
Kollegiengebäude (KG) 1
Lecture Hall (HS) 1199

1. Input from speakers

Speakers present their understanding of change by sharing their experience from their work in the realm of sustainable development.

2. The World Café

During each of the two rounds, you are at one table together with a speaker and about 10 other participants (students or young professionals) to discuss aspects of change like motivations, key skills for change, empowering knowledge and windows of opportunity.

3. Your enhancement

We reflect on different approaches for change and draw conclusions from the insights by the speakers and other participants on potential factors to propel change.

Success Factors for Change | Speakers

Tarcisio Hardmann Reis is the coordinator of the Environmental Network for Optimizing Regulatory Compliance on Illegal Traffic (ENFORCE), a partnership between governments, international organizations and networks on illegal traffic of hazardous wastes under the Basel Convention. Tarcisio is a Brazilian national and holds a Phd in international law.

She also set up an NGO in the Caribbean to create a peoples' movement to save an island of global ecological importance.

There is much in the world you want to change, but do you have the inner resources to really proceed? To be the change you want to see in the world, you need to know what drives you and in which direction you are going. Through the exploration of the relationship between your personal core values, your vision and sustainability goals, you can understand how all interact to influence your potential to deliver positive change.
